Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 6/29/2009 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.
2. Applicant argues the combination of Corey et al and Hiroahi et al fail to teach determining a category item for the A/V signal using feature information included in at least one of the system information and additional information of the received A/V signal. The examiner disagrees.
3. Abstract, Figures 6-7 and paragraphs 117-120 of Hiroahi et al clearly shown that the GENRE contains the category item of the A/V signal, for example, Sports, News, or Adult Movie...etc. The genre information is for the short programs information of channels. Paragraph 16 of Hiroahi et al teach the genre information comes with the broadcast A/V signal in the schedule_EIT. Claim 14 of the instant application also describes the EIT is one of the claimed system information. Therefore, the combination of Corey et al and Hiroahi et al teach determining a category item for the A/V signal using feature information included in at least one of the system information and additional information of the received A/V signal.
